THE ISSUES FACING THE REGION TODAY

- ✦ The emerald ash borer, an invasive insect from east Asia, is decimating the ash tree population in the Sourlands, which accounts for 20%, or one fifth, of all trees. This insect will end up destroying more than 1 million trees in the region over the next few years.
- ✦ With 10 to 12 times the sustainable deer population, it's impossible for the Sourland forest to regenerate. A deer can consume 6 pounds of native saplings and shrubs per day, thus eliminating nearly all new growth and leaving a depleted forest floor.
- ✦ There are 57 threatened or endangered species that rely on the Sourlands for their survival, and their habitat is being adversely affected by invasive species, development, drought and a host of other problems.

WHAT THE SOURLAND CONSERVANCY IS DOING ABOUT IT

- ✦ The Sourland Conservancy's team of staff, interns and volunteers has planted more than 20,000 trees in the region over the last two years, helping connect critical habitat and keep wildlife populations healthy. Long term, that means more carbon captured, less regional flooding and cooler green spaces in our communities.
- ✦ Our Stewardship Crew is out in the field every week removing aggressive invasive species from our public parks, preserves and even on private land in an effort to help protect these threatened and endangered species.
- ✦ Through advocacy, we are the watchdogs of the 90-square-mile region, working with local municipalities and their leaders to prioritize ecological and human health.

WHO ARE WE?

The Sourland Conservancy is the only nonprofit organization working to protect and preserve the important history and ecology of the Sourland Mountain region.

Our values are centered on inclusion, knowledge, respect and diversity, and are built into the framework of everything we do.

STEWARDSHIP

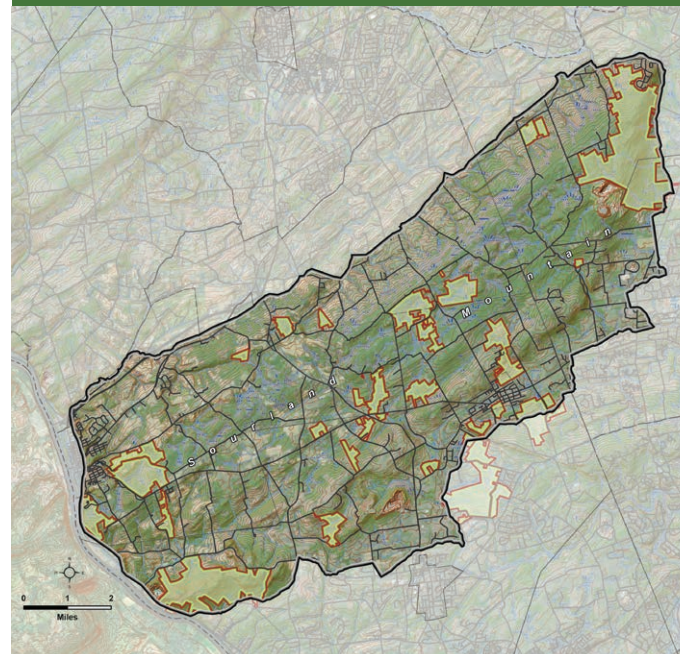

We advocate for the preservation of the historic and ecological qualities of the Sourland region through stewardship, a fresh approach to nature where people are fundamental to the health and beauty of the natural world around us.

EDUCATION

We offer a variety of events and activities to engage participants, deepen their understanding, and strengthen their connection to the Sourlands.

ADVOCACY

We advocate for policy and legal change to communicate our misión and to provide education on the issues facing the health of the Sourland ecosystem.

YES, I WANT TO BECOME A BUSINESS PARTNER!

Greetings!

Thank you for your interest in helping save the Sourlands by becoming a business partner of the Sourland Conservancy! Your business has taken a very important step in helping us protect the unique ecology of the Sourland region. A partnership with the Sourland Conservancy means your business, alongside many others, joins our collective mission to promote, protect and preserve the Sourlands, leaving behind a legacy of a healthy environment for generations to come.

Our values are simple. We believe citizens should play a vital role in improving the health of their communities. We aspire to increase the understanding of the unique character of this region. We understand that there is a wide divergence of regional interests and stakeholder needs, and that effective change is born from a positive discourse of ideas. And most importantly, we value the collective, rich history of our community.

Does your business share these values? If so, we would greatly appreciate your support. To help make the most of our partnership, we have developed several levels of sponsorship outlined in the enclosed pamphlet. There are many ways to help support our work. Big or small, we encourage you to find the right fit for your business. We look forward to our partnership!
